University policies are far more likely to be successful where they are clearly understood and accepted by all individuals directly or indirectly related to the university. At the end of the day, a Student Council will thrive only when its students themselves are sincerely dedicated and committed to the concept and to making it work.

The role of the Student Council:

A Student Council will set its own objectives under the purview of the university. Some general objectives could include:

- Last and foremost is that university administration will have the power to 2 dissolve the student council along with different student committees at any time without prior information.

The University administration will give active support to the student council. This could involve designating an advisor/guide to each and every student pursuing undergraduate and postgraduate degree in the University. In the initial stages Honorable Provost, together with the university administration, faculty members and other staff will assist in the development of a Student Council in different ways, for example, by discussing with students the role of a Student Council and the role of individual representatives on the Council and by advising on an appropriate statement of objectives. As the Council develops and begins to expand its role, Honorable Provost will always be available for guiding the Council's development, so as to allow for a constructive and purposeful Council.

Normally a Student Council shall stand dissolved when the term of office of the members expires. University administration may dissolve the Student Council before the expiry of its term in accordance with the rules and procedures governing dissolution. This will only happen in exceptional circumstances after consultation with all concerned

Where University administration intends dissolving the Council, it will give the Council adequate notice of the proposal, and the reasons therefore. The Council will be allowed to appeal the dissolution to the University administration. Where the Student Council is dissolved another Council may be formed following the procedures outlined earlier. Where a Council is dissolved less than 6 weeks before the end of the University academic year or during final examinations, the appointment of a new Council may reasonably be left until the following academic year. Circumstances that may require the early dissolution of a Student Council include:

- Where a significant number of members of the Council have been involved in a serious breach of the University's code of behavior.
- Where serious irregularities have occurred in the functioning of the Council
- Where the activities of the Council have endangered the welfare of staff or students of the University.
- Where serious financial irregularities have occurred It will not be appropriate to dissolve a Council where only a few of its members have been involved in a breach of the University.

In those circumstances, the University should only consider removal of those students concerned. Making provision for Faculty Coordinator to attend Council meetings over the course of the year also has significant benefits for the Council, as it means that there is a source of ongoing advice and support available. Where teachers are involved from year to year, it will also ensure some continuity in the activities of the Council.

Regular and effective communication is the key to success for any Student Council. This doesn't happen by itself and it is a good idea to develop ways of keeping the University community informed of and involved in the various activities planned by the Student Council. The Student Council represents all students in the University. It is very important that students receive regular information on the plans and activities of the Student Council and that as many students as possible participate in events organized by the Council/University authority.

Each member of the Council has a special responsibility and should ensure that their views are brought to the attention of the Council and that they remain fully informed of the Council's activities. Procedures should be put in place to ensure that all students are fully informed about Council activities. One way of ensuring this would be to provide for regular meetings between individual members of the Student Council. The Council could also carry out a survey of student views on particular issues, or on the role of the Council itself. Regular communication between the Student Council and University administration, Provost and staff provides the basis for building a good and lasting relationship, based on trust and respect, between students and the rest of the University community.
